"I'm committed to listening to you about the issues most important to our community."

Montana is a great place to work and recreate. Unfortunately, some advocates would like to reduce natural resource development. Bill is committed to:

RESPONSIBLE RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT

Montana is called the Treasure State because of our natural resources. A large number of jobs and substantial tax revenue are created through our timber, coal, copper, silver, gold, and oil and natural gas industries. Bill believes that Montana can develop its natural resources without compromising our desire for environmental quality. He would be a voice for the importance of these sectors of the economy to our ability to finance essential public services.

ENSURING ACCESS TO PUBLIC LANDS

Bill knows the importance of public lands to Montanans. Like so many of us, he appreciates the splendor and remoteness of public lands in Big Sky Country. He would work to ensure that access is preserved.
